1 COFFEE GRINDING

Coffee beans are ground to allow the flavour to be extracted from the bean in water, providing a cup of coffee.

2 CHEMEX

A pour-over method, which means that the water passes through a bed of coffee and a filter, normally made out of paper. Chemex will give you a remarkably clean cup of coffee.

3 CRAFTED HAND DRIP

Pouring water through coffee grounds in a slow, circular motion.

Miss SHOPhia

What is Drip Coffee?

Drip coffee is a brewing method that involves filtering hot water over ground coffee and collecting the brew as it drips into a glass or pot below. As the water seeps through the ground coffee beans, it extracts the compounds that give coffee its delicious flavour.

COFFEE EXPERIENCE

INTRODUCTION TO SPECIALTY COFFEE IN SARAWAK

Liberica coffee has been cultivated in Southeast Asia since the late 19th century and has a cultivation history of 140 years. However, it only accounts for less than 2% of global coffee production. This phenomenon is due to Liberica's biological characteristics and crop economics which also apply to Sarawak.

Earthlings Coffee's interest in Liberica coffee started in 2017 when they embarked on a mission to collect diverse varieties of Liberica coffee from villages in Sarawak. At that time, Liberica was perceived as low-quality coffee and was largely neglected in the wild.

However, by introducing proper care and processing methods, the quality of Sarawak Liberica coffee was later recognised by international coffee experts in Germany at the Intergesta Coffee Summit. This sparked their passion for the species and organised the Borneo

Coffee Symposium and the first International Liberica Roasting Competition in 2019 to promote Sarawak's hidden gem.

Having promoted Sarawak Liberica coffee for many years, the Earthlings team was invited by Alasdair Clayre, a white indigenous person (locally known as Orang Putih Asli) from the interior of Sarawak to visit the local Indigenous Liberica coffee plantations in early 2023.

Through continuous collaboration with Alasdair in the Liberica Refinement Project launched in the highlands of Long Banga, the Earthling team aims to establish good examples based on village-scale smallholder farmers.

Their approach involves educating these pioneer farmers on proper harvesting and processing methods. They use a grading system to improve the quality of local Liberica, and ultimately purchasing from them at a price nearly twice as high as that of the Fairtrade International organisation.

This created successful pilot cases for specialty Liberica coffee in Sarawak. The success of this project not only instills confidence among local coffee farmers but also paves the way for the replication and expansion of viable models to other Liberica coffee-producing regions across Sarawak.

- Mineral Water
- A packet of coffee product
- Licensed Tour Guide

ACTIVITIES

Depart for Bidayuh Longhouse tour. A pleasant drive into the countryside with the backdrop of undulating landscapes of limestone hills and valleys covered with the greenery of rainforest offers a gorgeous sight before arriving at the longhouse. The longhouse which stands on the same site where the longhouse was first built 200 years ago still stand with its unique architecture built largely of bamboo, wood and leaves. The Bidayuh are absolutely warm and gentle people whose previous generations once lived as farmers and believed in animism. Bidayuh community are known for their farming activities that including planting cocoa & coffee tree, an orchard, paddy fields and palm oil trees. Here, we will take you to visit one of their coffee bean farm and the same time to experience their life styles routine and to participate in their daily activities.

After lunch, we will depart back to Kuching and make a stop at one of the coffee beans shop where coffee brew of a mix between local Borneo beans of liberica and robusta. It had that edgy extra special aroma and palate to it. Not tame, neither mild, but strong, earthy and quite a stunner!
